Harvard Led at First, but Yale Came Out in the Third M 19.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 30,-Yale won the 'varsity race from Harvard to-day by a lead estimated at from three to five lengths. A large part of this lead was gained or the last half mile, when Yale spurted and Harvard could not keep the pace and kept it for almost two miles. Then Yale began to close up the gap between the two boats, and after that, barring accidents, the result was never in when the crimson was defeated by two lengths. Harvard took the lead at the word "go" from the referee, George L. Rives, and in ten strokes was a quarter of a boat length shead.

The lead was increased slightly until the little coxswain in the Harvard shell was abreast of No. 4 in the New Haven boat. At the half mile flag there was one second difference between the crews, Harvard being in the lead.

From this point to the mile flag the crimson more than held its own, and when one mile of the race had been rowed Harvard had gained one and a half seconds over their rivals.

But right here the east course, on which the Cambridge eight was rowing, goes into the shoal water over the cel grass. Foot by foot Capt. Ives's crew cut off the advantage which to this time had been held by Harvard.

Yale was steadily forging ahead, having paked the nose of her shell to the front just after the second mile was entered. The watches showed at the mile and a half stake that the blue was in the lead by three seconds, or just a boat length.

But now Harvard came out of the shoal water, and Fennessey bit up the stroke to thirty-nine.

When the three-mile flag had been moved and put in line, the Polly was headed upriver again until she was off Red Top. Meanwhile the wind had gone down, but suddenly it came up again, stronger than ever.

Referce Rives asked the two judges if they thought the crews had better be gotten out, and they decided that they had. CREWS CALLED OUT.

Half-way between the quarters of the two crews the referce's boat slowed up, and a long, shrill whistle, followed by a short blast notified the rival carsmen that they must get ready. This was at 10.35.

Betting Is almost Unseen. The Harvard financiers want better odds than Yale will give.

The coachers of both crews say that their men are in good condition and ready for the fray.

Fearing is the only Harvard man of braced up wonderfully during the last few days. All the Yale men are very

Here Harvard's course took her directly into the channel, but in spite of this fact the Yales continued to increase their lead, slowly but steadily, until they had rowed three miles.

Then Capt. Vall called upon his men for a supreme effort. Fennessey gradually increased his stroke until it was set at a forty pace and the crimson shell began to crawl up on the leader.

The wind is freshening a little, and it loos as though quite a breeze might be blowing in the course of half an hour. If the race can be rowed against a head wind, Harvard will have a better chance of winning than in smooth water, as the course of worning than in smooth water, as the course of worning than in smooth water, as the course of worning than in smooth water.

in the money market, which sent the rates for call loans up to 72 per cent. per annum, was relieved by the prompt action of the Clearing-House banks in taking out loan certificates, and it said that more certificates will be isnecessary to avert a panic.

The certificates actually issued yes.

The amount of certificates already authorized by the Comittee and now outstanding is more than $12,090,000, and the assurance is given that it will not hesitate to issue $10,00,000 more, but it is not believed that this will be necessary.

Thousands of miners will be thrown out of employment during the next week, and there will be much distress.

As the gold mines yield considerably in silver, thany that are classed as gold mines will be obliged to close down.

Present indications are that the business of all kinds will remain at a standatill until Concress meets, and if the Sherman law is repealed and nothing better enacted to take its place the production of silver in this State will cease.

The closing of the mines will affect farmers and all who are dependent upon a home market. The effect of the action of the Clear-ing-House Committee was seen in the improved tone of the stock market this morning. Prices showed an ad-vance all along the line, and the bear element was evidently operating with element was evidently operating with caution.

It was reported during the early part of the forenoon that money had been offered outside at 15 per cent, or call, which is a decline of 5 per cent, from last night's closing price.

The Presidents of the leading banks say that they have taken the loan certificates not so much because they need them as for the purpose of relieving the stringency of the market and breaking up the high rates for money.

President J. Edward Simmons, of the Fourth National Bank, says: "Disaster was impending, and if this action had not been taken several serious failures must have resulted. It was to avoid this only that we acted. By doing so we broke the back of the high money market.

President Tappan, of the Gallatin National Bank, expressed similar views and said that the action was necessary to prevent business coming to an absolute standstill.
